

Black comedy of two urban antiheroes: he was thrown in jail for their work, and her caged in their illusions. Two destinations, astrology, a company dinner, the crisis, some delirious dreams, fast paced action, Roberto Carlos, Brazilian singer, Barbra Streisand, an aborted strangulation, a seduction by greed two jailed two releases, the future a hope, an illusion ... What is life?

In line with contemporary artists such as Rodrigo García, Miguel Morillo is, however, much more "gentle" with his dissecting knife of reality shows "lovable" characters, who dream and are moved, but also hate and fuck with an acid and extroverted humor, inseparable from the dramatic situation, with an unstoppable, fluid and complex "word" that touches the soul and heart of every piece. Guaranteed. A funny per-version of "Life is a dream."
