

Two travelers, two walkers, two young lives begin their own way. Each from distant worlds, but a common dream: to live! What apparently began as a personal journey, gradually becomes a meeting between them, then a recognition, affection and respect for the other, and finally, in the discovery of a road full of stories of others and others. A hard road but full of tenderness, which will try to make the pain own teaching, each from his gaze. They are accompanied by a string of bags that will be his confidants, their shelter, transportation and, of course, its roots.
